Course Description:

Math Lab/College Ready Reading is a course designed for students who have IEP goals in a variety of areas. The overall focus of this class is twofold. Students are pre-assessed and taught specific skills targeted to increase foundational abilities according to individual academic need. In addition, gaining successful access and growth in general education content is another important focus. Students will be asked to work on foundational skills in their area of need (math, reading, writing) individually, in groups and as a class. They will also be given instruction aligned with their general education math and/or language classes in the form of pre-teaching and/or re-teaching of concepts. This class will focus on in-class skill preparation and growth. Attendance and active participation is required since preparation for essential skills tests and assignments will be a vital part of their success in core classes.
